

'Maid Of The Highlands' Boat Destroyed By Fire

The "Maid of the Highlands" which for some years now has been taking passengers on cruises over the various lakes that form a chain extending from Head Lake at Haliburton to Canning Lake near Minden, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Harold Brodhagen, who operates the boat, had a call from Chateau Woodland that a party wished to be taken on a cruise. Mrs. Tony McClain and Mrs. Phyllis Pearsall decided to accompany him on the trip.

All went well apparently while crossing Grass Lake, but as they approached the narrows between Grass and Kashagawigamog lakes the motor started to act strange and another boat operator passing noticed heavy smoke issuing from the exhaust pipe.

Shortly after this flames started to shoot out from around the motor and in a few moments the blaze had made such headway that despite the use of the fire extinguisher with which the boat is equipped, it was of little or no avail.

By this time the ladies had donned their life jackets as the flames had all but enveloped the craft and Mrs. McClain had taken to the water before Stanley Consky and Donald Middleton pulled alongside and took the passengers aboard their boat.

Harold Brodhagen stayed with the craft until all hope of saving it had been abandoned. His faithful dog, Susie, remained until she was badly singed by the flames.

The boat was owned by Mr. Moffat of the Highland Snack Bar and at time of going to press we have not learned if it was covered by insurance or not.

Legion Carnival Successful

Blessed with one of the finest evenings the weatherman could give us, the annual Haliburton Legion carnival went off as scheduled last night.

Hundreds of people lined the main street at 7 p.m. to watch the military parade led by the Haliburton Legion band. Following were members of the Haliburton Legion branch 129 and veterans from many out of town branches.

The large crowd that lined the streets were not disappointed but it kept them busy following the parade and looking skyward to see the air show.

As the band blazed away and the veterans stepped it off, overhead was the roar of jet engines, as the Royal Canadian Air Force put on a fly-past and demonstration of CF-100 jets.

Flying in close formation they kept the large crowd in attendance standing there amazed at this great air spectacle.

After the parade the crowd headed for the arena where the Legion band, under the direction of bandmaster George Wheeler, entertained the crowd with several musical selections.

While part of the crowd were in the arena playing the games and having refreshments, the other half were outside in the community hall park enjoying the activities of the giant midway. And business was good as the ferris wheel and merry-go-round had a large waiting line-up all evening.

At 9 p.m. Fred Ewing, master of ceremonies for the evening, introduced the local talent which participated in the stage show. It was wonderful to see all this local talent on parade and it is through the efforts of the Legion that these talented young people get a chance to perform. Special mention should go to Yves Sicard, local contractor, who has spent hours of his time in the last several weeks rounding this show together. The performers on stage came from every part of Haliburton county to help the Legion in their big night.

This was one of the most successful carnivals in the Legion's history and already they are talking of bigger and better things for next year.

Mr. and Mrs. John (Jack) Roberts who were married in St. John's United Church, Campbellford, recently.

Fires Threaten County Forests

Last week, three forest fires were started by human carelessness in Bruton and Guilford townships, Haliburton county, and Harvey township in Peterboro county.

Lands and Forests suppression crews were able to extinguish all three fires very quickly, thus confining the burned area to a very small acreage.

Ontario Provincial Police are still investigating one of these fires which apparently was started by a cottager leaving his burning slash pile unattended.

The fire in Harvey township was started by careless smokers.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

Magistrate's court was held in the court rooms, Minden, on Thursday, July 14, Magistrate Moore presiding.

Stanley Carey of Gooderham pleaded guilty to failing to stop after an accident. On July 2 he damaged a car owned and driven by Mr. Blacktop of Bear Lake when he passed the car on the road.

The license number of the Carey car was observed by the three occupants of the Blacktop car and reported to the police. Mr. Carey was fined $50 plus $16 costs.

Harold Marshal, 18, of Haliburton, was also charged with hit and run after he smashed into a car parked on Minden's main street and failed to stop. He was later apprehended by the Haliburton officers.

He pleaded guilty and was fined $25 plus costs of $18.

Lands 28 lb. Trout At Hollow Lake

After a two hour battle, George Pennick, assisted by Bill Morris, was successful in landing a 28 pound lake trout at Hollow Lake, north of Dorset.

The first was 40 inches long with a girth of 24 inches. From the point of its mouth to the corner of its mouth measured 5½ inches.

The two men, instructors at the forestry school, were trolling last Sunday when this prize catch was made using a medium Williams warbler.

Wild Life Visitor In Minden

Tuesday morning there was a strange visitor on the main street of Minden in that of a live raccoon.

This one seemed frightened and stood directly in the middle of the street and stopped or detoured the cars around it.

Finally a call was placed to the Dept. of Lands and Forests and the animal was disposed of, but not before a large crowd had gathered to catch perhaps their first glimpse of one of our native animals.

Kathleen Mabel McGuire

The passing of Kathleen Mabel McPhadden, beloved wife of Alexander McPhadden at Maple Lake on Sunday, July 10, 1960, must bring home to us all the uncertainty of life.

The deceased, who was the daughter of Florence Sherman and the late John McGuire, was in apparent good health up until a few minutes before her death when she complained of feeling ill and suddenly passed on.

The late Kathleen McPhadden was born in Furnace Falls, Snowdon township and as a young girl lived and attended school in that vicinity.

On July 6, 1935, she married Alexander McPhadden of Cannington, the marriage taking place in the United church in Kilmount. Following her marriage she had lived the greater part of the time in Toronto. At the time of her demise the deceased was in her 45th year.

The funeral service was held in the Gospel Light-house, Haliburton, under the direction of the Rev. Lynton Fairhurst who delivered an inspiring message of comfort to the bereaved.

HALIBURTON NEWS LETTER . . .

We are sorry to report that Mr. R. C. Beam, one of our summer residents from south of the border is in the hospital at Middletown, Ohio due to having a heart attack. Mr. Beam had just returned from a trip abroad when he became ill and we learn that he will have to take it easy for a spell.

The many friends of Mr. Beam and his family in this area hope he will experience a speedy recovery and will be able to return to the Highlands of Haliburton real soon.

An exceptionally large congregation was on hand at the Haliburton United Church on Sunday morning last. During the service Mr. R. J. Curry, chairman of the pastoral relations committee spoke briefly to the congregation conveying the welcome news that the Rev. George W. Petrie of St. Paul's United Church, Windsor, had accepted the call of the Haliburton charge. The new minister has been filling in as a supply as it were, until a new pastor could be secured and during that time has taken a liking to this area and its people and as far as the latter are concerned the feeling is mutual. The members of the congregation of the charge feel they have been fortunate in securing the Rev. Petrie as their minister and already members are beginning to hope for the construction of a new United church in Haliburton. The congregation gathered last Sunday were privileged to hear an exceptionally fine soloist when Mrs. Warren of Sudbury sang "How Great Thou Art." Rev. B. A. Warren accompanied his wife at the organ.

The tourist season is in full swing and local businessmen that we have talked to say they will be ahead of last July insofar as sales are concerned. This is not a local condition as the same holds good all over the county—but all are agreed it's a mighty short season.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Baker of Oakville are visiting in the Haliburton area.

A new business got underway in Haliburton when Messrs. Marshall Leighton and Wesley Parish purchased all the necessary equipment for the drilling of wells.

An advertisement in this paper states that they are now prepared to accept orders for this type of work.

Several families from the U.S. are guests at Summerland lodge. Our American friends are greatly impressed with Haliburton county, and appreciate the Canadian hospitality extended to them wherever they go.

IN QUEST OF YESTERDAY

A HISTORY OF HALIBURTON

by NILA REYNOLDS

Third Installment CHAPTER 2 A Preview To Settlement

Have you ever speculated upon the identity of the first European to visit Haliburton County? Was it a band of dauntless Vikings who penetrated to the heart of Ontario by the Trent and Gull River waters? That they did reach central North America, probably via the Great Lakes is accepted historical fact. One of their swords has been uncovered in the regions north of Lake Superior.

Was it Etienne Brule, the first white man of the 17th century to stand on the shores of the Great Lakes; to travel the Indian water paths of most of Ontario? A shadowy figure, he flits briefly across the pages of Ontario's early history in the garb of the Indians with whom he had learned to live, only to perish ignominiously as the main course of a Huron feast.

Mr. W. R. Curry remembers an Indian acquaintance from Baptiste Lake known locally as "Old Man Baptiste" who lived on the shores of the lake which bears his name. He informed Mr. Curry that his tribe always ascended to the Algonquin Park and regions to the north by the more easily navigated Gull River waters. To travel southward they used the swifter and more treacherous Burnt River route. Most of those who, guided by the Indians, invaded Haliburton County in the early days astensibly followed the Indian itinerary previously mentioned.

When Samuel de Champlain returned from his expedition to Iroquois country south of Lake Ontario in 1615, his Hurons guided him homeward by an entirely different way north of his former course; pausing to replenish their food supply with venison before continuing to Huronia where they arrived on December 23, 1615. Did the Hurons choose for their hunting grounds the forests of Haliburton which they knew abounded in game? On a map compiled in 1653 by Sanson, the King's map maker from information supplied by Champlain, the Haliburton area is designated as "A fine place to hunt stag and caribou." Did Champlain know this from personal experience?

Jesuit priests ranged this section of Ontario in their ministrations to the souls of the Algonquins and Hurons who hunted here.

In his centennial history, Watson Kirkconnell cites a legend that captures the imagination.

In 1759 a party of Jesuits who feared seizure by the English gathered together their church plate and treasure for transportation to the supposed safety of the bastions of Quebec City. Interrupted in their flight by a band of hostile Indians, they buried the treasure somewhere on Ghost Island in Balsam Lake. Why hasn't it been discovered to date?

The answer runs true to the tradition of treasure stories—the ghosts of the Jesuits who were afterwards massacred by the Indians remain to thwart discovery. They guard the treasure which, even in death, remains their sacred trust.

The professor also mentions an Indian village at the head of the second portage at Balsam Lake which Champlain visited in 1615 and which up to 1760 the Jesuits frequented. A trading post was established there which served the Indians of the surrounding regions for many years. Its great stone chimneys withstood the battering of the elements until 1871.

The great ecclesiastical explorer, the Abbe Fenelon, is known to have visited the picturesque falls upon which he bestowed his name toward the end of the 17th century. Did he cross Cameron and Balsam Lake to ascend the Gull River to Haliburton?

A strange discovery, unearthed in 1901 when John Lucas Jr. excavated the foundation for the brick addition to the Grand Central Hotel which still stands on Haliburton's main street, indicates that someone of European origin passed this way.

Seven feet below the surface of the ground he came upon a rusted object of unusual shape which excited his curiosity. Urged by inquisitive friends, he sent it in 1903 to the Ontario Department of Education at Toronto from whom he received the following reply:

"I have a letter from W. A. Young informing me with respect to a find you made over a year ago, the specimen being of iron some 12 or 14 inches long and found at a depth of six or seven feet from the surface. From the description and drawings forwarded to me by Mr. Young, I should be disposed to regard the object as a harpoon made by some of the early voyageurs or coureurs du bois. These men frequently found their way to great distances from white settlements in the prosecution of the fur trade and may have carried with them an implement of this kind for the purpose of assisting them in either their hunting or fishing expedition. One thing is certain and that is, that the tool is of European origin and it is almost certain that it was used as a harpoon."

As to date, it might go as far back as from 1620 to 1650, but as you well understand it might also be of more recent date. If there were any kind of stamp on any part of the tool it might furnish a clue to the date. One of the difficulties in all such finds of this kind is to understand how such objects reach so great a depth."

In this case it is highly possible that 300 years ago Head Lake may have extended over a much larger area. The lost harpoon could easily have been covered by deposits of silt while under water and by leaf mold when it was exposed to the air.

This priceless relic is at present in the possession of a daughter of Mr. Lucas, Mrs. Elwood Austin of Haliburton who still lives in the house her father built in 1907. It was the first house in Haliburton village to have a bathroom and it was lit originally by carbide gas. To one who finds fascination in antiquity, Mrs. Austin's lovely home has an Arabian Nights quality. Her carefully preserved collection of silver and china is enhanced by the stories of yesterday which accompany each piece; a 150 year old cup and saucer decorated in gold leaf which was given to her by Mrs. Isaac Allcorn because it was the last piece of the set presented to Mrs. Allcorn on her marriage by the lord and lady for whom she worked before coming to Canada; the 100 year old silver tea service which was a wedding gift to John Lucas when he married Miss Annie Boundy of Cobourg and purchased the Grand Central Hotel from Mr. G. Gould; three exquisite Wedgwood wall plaques of surpassing beauty presented to Mrs. Austin by Mr. Carruthers who hired a special train to move his belongings to Haliburton; also Mr. Niven's diary and books and papers pertaining to Haliburton's past which belonged to John Lucas Jr.

The harpoon spear which Mr. Lucas unearthed was examined in November of 1903. Since then there have been sweeping advances in historical detection. If it could be examined again by the curators of the Ontario museum additional information of great historical value might be added to our too scanty fund.

Who was it stood on the banks of Head Lake where the village of Haliburton now stands on that memorable day 300 years ago. Was it a French, Dutch or English fur trader in smoky, travel stained buckskins who clobbered the mosquitoes out of his beard as he peered across the waters ever on the alert for Indians? Was it Etienne Brule or even Samuel de Champlain, soldier of France, himself? Was it a black robed Jesuit who told the beads of his rosary while his sweating Indian guides paddled their birch craft along the shores?

What mischance made the traveler lose or abandon his weapon? An ambush by Indians who consequently lifted his scalp? Was it wrenched from his hands by a fish too large for a man to manage or carried off by a wounded deer?

For us the answer to these intriguing questions must always remain an enigma but one indisputable fact emerges from the shadows of speculation. This mystery traveler who 300 years ago stood on the banks of Head Lake was Haliburton's first tourist!

Following the conclusion of the war of 1812 a series of exploratory expeditions were conducted by the government. The first by Lieut. J. P. Catty of the Royal Engineers attempting to find a practical east-west route from the Ottawa to the Georgian Bay, crossed in 1819 via Balsam Lake, Kenisis and the Madawaska. Lieut. Catty is the first known Englishman to have stood upon Haliburton soil. He was followed in 1826 by Lieut. H. B. Brisco, R.E., and Ensign Durnford, R.E., who ascended the Muskoka proceeding by the Lake of Bays, Lake Opeongo and the Petawawa, and by Alexander Sheriff who in 1829 wrote this report for his father Charles: (Speaking of Haliburton and the Algonquin Park). "Its considerable elevation and pure waters ensure it as being unsurpassed by any other section of the country in the important requisites of healthiness."

Lieut. F. H. Baddeley, R.E., and Lieut. J. Carthew, Royal Navy, also passed this way in 1835 followed in 1837 by David Thompson, cartographer and explorer unexcelled. Thompson has been called "the greatest land geographer the British race has ever produced." With the most primitive instruments he compiled a map of the Canadian north west the accuracy of which challenges admiration for it was used as the basis for every map of that territory published since then.

Although misfortune overtook Thompson and plagued his old age with blindness and poverty, the years cannot dim the light of glory which shines from his achievements. One day the country which he served so well will award him the acclaim he deserves.

The Highlands of Haliburton are, in fact, a vast elevated plain of granite and gneiss scoured by the teeth of prehistoric glaciers and etched by eons of erosion into innumerable rounded hills whose valley depressions are surfaced by sandy loam and beds of clay.

Since primordial times the land was clothed in a solid green garment of many tinted hardwoods and softwoods whose only rents were the valley bottoms which cupped an endless chain of small irregular lakes. It has been truly said of our highlands that you can find no spot in the whole county more than two miles from water.

During the 1830's and 40's crowds thronged the quays of Irish ports eager to fly their beloved country now dark with pestilence and famine. In Scotland the profitable wool trade had left the small farmers without land and in England the repeal of the corn laws which opened the market to a glut of foreign grain had produced a depression. A harvest of people was ripening whose only desire and hope for the future lay in immigration to the new world.

The Peter Robinson settlement at Peterboro, which then included the counties of Victoria and Haliburton, had proven so successful, as had consequent settlement projects, that it was decided by the government of Upper Canada to accommodate the influx of settlers by selling outright the land in the back townships and using the proceeds to open new colonization roads to what some called "the back of beyond."

Like Joshua in the Old Testament the government dispatched spies to view "the promised land" and bring back reports of its suitability for farming and settlement and like Joshua the government received glowing accounts of "a land flowing with milk and honey."

The biggest tragedy of Haliburton's history lies in the fact that lacking effective methods of soil analysis, light land eminently suited to the growth of the best white pine in Canada was declared by early surveys to be excellent for farming thus condemning to the axe a treasure which might, if it had been properly administered, have enriched our county for centuries to come.

Previous to 1860 the Canada Land and Immigration Co. was organized in London, England, for the purpose of colonizing land in Canada and profiting the company in the process.

Sponsored by a group of influential businessmen at a time when investment in the colonies was the order of the day, they negotiated with the Crown for the purchase of 10 townships of Peterboro county, Longford (which they sold at once to the Thompson Lumber Co. for $20,000. Thompson cut the pine and made a fortune) Dysart, Dudley, Guilford, Harburn, Harcourt, Eyre, Havelock, Clyde and Bruton. These townships were surveyed into lots 20 chains by 50 each of which comprised 100 acres. Lateral road allowances were made at the end of every fifth lot. A survey in preparation to opening them for settlement was made of the townships of Minden, Stanhope, Dysart, Guilford, Dudley, Harburn and Bruton in 1857.

In 1861 the Canada Land and Immigration Co. completed their purchase of the 10 townships for which they paid the government $95,000 down. The company had a capital of $250,000. The number of shares issued at $5 each was 20,425. Only 3,150 were sold.

The 10 townships, reported to be worth 300,000, represented a total of 403,000 acres according to the survey of Mr. Gorsage, P.L.S., but an agreement with the Crown demanded payment for only 362,125 acres which were to be paid for at 50 cents an acre with 10% of the purchase price refunded to the company for the construction of township roads.

The company agreed to bring in settlers for the townships and build a saw mill, grist mill, church, etc., at the town site they chose.

On all the deeds issued by the Canada Land and Immigration Co. there is a clause reserving to the company exclusively the water rights, the mineral rights and the right to cut the white pine. For the settler the company favored only one occupation—farming!

In 1858, when the government surveyor reached Lutterworth township in the south west extremes of Haliburton County, he found settlers who had been there for several years. Gull Lake, Moore's Lake, Mud Lake and along the Gull River were easily accessible by water from Cobocok on the north shore of Balsam Lake which as early as 1851 had a saw mill.

All the old records I have consulted seem to agree on one point, when the Canada Land and Immigration Co. officials came to Haliburton they found that they had been preceded by David Sawyer and his family who had been residents of the district for some time.

Mr. Sawyer was a trapper although he is listed on the first tax assessment rolls of the Municipality of Dysart as a farmer residing in Dysart township.

That was in 1867, later he appears on the Dudley roll and finally in the township of Harburn where he lived until the time of his death. A modern foot note to the municipality's first citizen: When A. H. Curry's construction crew were bulldozing the foundation for Mr. Fred Heil's summer home on Haliburton Lake, they came upon the remains of an old log cabin and a root house, for this was also the site of David Sawyer's home at the "lift over" on the shores of what he and all the old timers called Crooked Lake.

The first practical step toward colonization was taken when a sequence of colonization roads were planned and built. First of these was the famous Peterson running east and west. Begun by the military after the war of 1812 to facilitate troop movements east and west from the Ottawa River to Georgian Bay, it was allowed to fall into disrepair for nearly half a century when the pressure of encroaching pioneers and the threat of the Fenian raids across the border from the U.S. made the government consider its re-construction.

This was authorized by four orders in council of the Bureau of Agriculture under David Gibson dated Sept. 15, 1853, April 21, 1854, May 19, 1854 and June 23, 1854.

On March 25, 1859, Thos. McGarry posted a bond to complete a portion of the Peterson from the Hastings road to the north west angle of the Township of Herschell. Funds for its construction were provided by improvement funds and colonization grants administered by the minister of agriculture and the commissioner of crown lands. A report to the Department of Crown Lands states that the Peterson road line became known as "Mr. Bell's Muskoka road line" which presumably is the "Bell line," the survey of which was completed by Mr. Bell in 1854, referred to in the various Bobcaygeon road extensions.

Best Buy in Fenders—Volkswagen

Volkswagen makes sense for you in many ways. Everything was designed with your pocket book in mind—nothing has been changed to please a passing fad. Take spare parts, for example: Volkswagen's fenders are bolted to the body for quick replacement. (A rear fender costs $16.10). Or a complete engine can be exchanged in 90 minutes. Only two examples of what a soundly engineered car means for you.

Or think of the low initial cost: Volkswagen has maintained the same price ever since it was introduced in Canada eight years ago. The secret? Volkswagen has increased production year by year, from 8,000 cars in 1948 to more than 700,000 in 1959, making it the largest selling small car in the world—by far.

The logical result of maintaining and improving a sound basic design is a standard of quality which has made Volkswagen famous throughout the world. 1,526 Canadian Volkswagen owners have received the Gold Watch Award and Diploma for driving their cars 60,000 miles without major repair.

Over 300 dealers, coast to coast, invite you to join this happy family soon.

In Memoriam

Ross—In loving memory of our darling son, Donald, who left us to be with Jesus three years ago today:

We loved him, yes, we loved him,

But Jesus loved him more; He has sweetly called him to yonder shining shore.

The golden gates were opened,

A gentle voice said come, And with farewells unspoken He gently entered home.

—Mommy and daddy.

Hie—In loving memory of a dear mother, Marjorie Hie, who passed away July 16, 1957:

A beautiful memory dearer than gold

Of a mother whose worth never can be told;

On earth she nobly did her best,

Grant her, Jesus, heavenly rest.

—Sadly missed but always remembered by daughter Evelyn and son-in-law Neil.

SCHOOL HEALTH REPORT

Research has shown that nine out of 10 Canadians have had their health affected detrimentally by dental disease.

This is a very serious situation.

Most children begin life with healthy mouths. It should be much easier to keep them healthy than to allow disease to occur and later apply remedies. Therefore early and regular dental care is essential for the maintenance of good health.

A survey some time ago revealed that 90% of the six year olds in a certain area in Ontario suffered tooth decay, with an average of 10 decayed tooth surfaces in each month.

We have in Haliburton county, approximately 200 children six years of age, expecting to begin school this fall. That could mean 180 of those 200 have decayed teeth.

The cause?

1. Childhood diseases or poor nutrition may interfere with the normal development of the enamel.
2. Parents, feeling that a young child needs extra sugar for energy, or wishing to passify him, often give him gum, soft drinks, candy or other sweet foods.

These not only cause the development of cavities, but establish an appetite for sweets which will tend to make him overindulge in these foods and lack appetite for the foods he should eat. Children do not need sweets!

These days much stress is laid on the importance of immunization against the various diseases. Is it not just as important to have the child protected against tooth decay, diseases of the mouth, etc?

At the age of two and a half to three a child usually has his complete set of 20 primary teeth, and his permanent teeth are all in various stages of development within the jaws. It is therefore very important that the primary teeth be well cared for. They require the attention of a dentist just as much as the permanent teeth. And the child should be provided with a suitable tooth brush and taught to use it regularly.

The primary teeth are important for:

ESSONVILLE

On July 5 the children of Christ's Church Sunday school held their annual picnic with Capt. T. Bailey and Mrs. Eldon Sibley in charge. Races, games and contests

1. Chewing food.
2. They promote a good appearance.
3. They assist in normal speech.
4. They stimulate the normal growth and development of the jaws. And when they are healthy, toothache is avoided.

The child's first visit to the dentist should be made at two and a half to three years, and should be treated as a normal experience in order not to arouse the child's suspicions and fears. If the parents cooperate with the dentist and follow his advice regarding diet and home dental care, it will mean better teeth in the future.

were held, and later in the afternoon awards were given for the highest attendance of the year, going to Judy and Jacqueline Walsh, Linda, John and Wendy Sibley, Carla and Jackie Williams and Sherilyn McCrea. Lunch was then served and all the children went home after spending a happy afternoon.

On Friday evening, July 8 at 8 p.m. at Christ's Church, Essonville, 10 new confirmees took their first holy communion at which Capt. T. Bailey and Rev. Taylor of Haliburton officiated. Rev. Taylor spoke on the holy communion. Those taking part were Ruth Coumbs, Shirley Coumbs, Linda Sibley, Judy Walsh, Jacqueline Walsh, Joan Walsh, Patsy Watson, Bonnie Johnson, Nora Walsh, and Norma Walsh.

After the service light refreshments were served at the home of Mrs. Eldon Sibley where each new confirmee received their certificate.

ORANGE PARADE AT PETERBOROUGH

"The greatest display of Orangism in local history," was how Morgan Brown, grand master of Ontario east, described Saturday's three mile long column of men, women and children who paraded through Peterboro to mark the centenary of the Loyal Orange Lodge of Ontario east.

Speaking at the exhibition grounds after the parade, Mr. Brown thanked the more than 50 bands taking part in the march, for helping to make the ceremonies so successful.

"Today we have celebrated not only the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, but 100 years of great service by the Orange lodge in this area," he said.

Only a few hundred of the estimated 10,000 marchers stayed to hear the speeches. Most people left the grounds as soon as their march was over.

Despite the heat, first aid officials had little to do. In the exhibition grounds one girl fainted, a diabetic required treatment. Robert Holliday of Lindsay lodge suffered a stroke and was taken to Civic hospital and released a few hours later and Mrs. James Avery of Bowmanville, who collapsed during the parade, was also treated at Civic and allowed to go home.

Thousands lined the streets to see the colorful spectacle. The predominating color was, of course, orange, but many of the women's lodges added variety by carrying brightly hued parasols.

Many of the bands were colorfully dressed, one of the most outstanding being the Lindsay Cavaliers band, the members of which wore black suits edged with gold and black hats with gold plumes.

The oldest man in the parade was Robert Richie, 91, of Peterboro. It was his 73rd Orange day march. Also marching for the 73rd time was Stuart Fallis, 89 of Millbrook. Another veteran march was George Sexsmith, 88, of Peterboro.

The longest journey made by a lodge was 120 miles by the Highland Road L.O.L. The longest journey by an individual was by Clarence Luffman, past county master of West Peterboro county, who traveled from Seattle, Wash.

The largest lodge represented was L.O.L. 50 of Peterboro with a membership of 90. There were 15 juvenile lodges on parade.

Grand lodge representatives included the Rev. Harold Beare of Roseneath, grand chaplain; Fred Bateman of Sterling, past grand master; Lorne Hagerman of Harold, Ont., associate deputy grand master, and Willis Cunningham of Fraserville, grand lecturer.

Mayor Donald Loucks said the parade surpassed anything he had ever seen. "It was fitting that this parade should take place at the conclusion of Friendship Week," he said.

The Rev. Gilmour Smith of Peterboro said he hoped the organization's achievements of the last 100 years would be equalled and surpassed in the next century.

Guest speaker, the Rev. D. P. Rowland, told the small crowd he brought greetings from Leslie Saunders, grand master and sovereign of British America and congratulations on the district's centennial.

Another outstanding visitor was Joshua Bell, grand treasurer of the Grand Black Chapter of the British Commonwealth visiting from Northern Ireland.
